SUMMARY

An army training area is adjacent to the Bank Airfield, 4.5 kilometers (km) east of Bank (Figure 1).

The installation covers 1,530 acres and contains a tank/assault-gun firing range, a flat-trajectory firing range, and 8 support buildings. (Figure 2). Four field artillery emplacements are 2.7 km west of the tank/assault-gun firing range. The Bank Army Barracks [REDACTED] is 3.6 km west of the training area and a secured explosives storage area containing 15 ammunition storage buildings is located 3.9 km west-northwest of the firing range.

A comparative study of [REDACTED] photography [REDACTED] reveals expansion and increased use of the firing ranges. No change is discernible in the support facilities. The poor quality of this photography precludes a more detailed analysis.
